

Job title: Medical science liaison (MSL)

Department: Medical Affairs Department

Job Description

- Management of global key opinion leaders (KOLs): manage communication with global KOLs on behalf of the company. This role includes managing advisory board meetings, applying KOLs' views into the company's medical goals, and project managing other company-related events
- Management of investigator-initiated trials (IITs): Assess submitted proposals and investigators, project manage IIT applications including communication with stakeholders and budgeting, and support IITs in other capacities
- Medical education of internal and external stakeholders: periodically train internal members (BD and marketing members) and global partners (commercial & medical departments) on your disease area and/or product
- Keep up-to-date with disease area, other treatments, and competitor products
- Travel globally for meetings, congresses, other company-related events

Disease areas

- Hematology/oncology/cancer biology
- Rheumatoid arthritis/inflammation
- Inflammatory bowel disease/gut biology

Primary Location

Incheon, Korea

Position requirements

- High level degree required: PhD, PharmD, MD, RN
- Postdoctoral or industry experience is a plus
- Clinical experience or scientific knowledge in specific disease area is highly desirable
- Fluency in English required; intermediate or higher level of Korean highly desired
- Ability to travel globally up to 25% of time
- Excellent communication and presentation skills
- Project management skills

Contact to apply or for inquiries

Nam Lee, youngnam.lee@celltrion.com

About Celltrion Healthcare

Celltrion Healthcare is the commercial arm of Celltrion Group. Celltrion is the developer and manufacturer of world's first monoclonal antibody biosimilar, Remsima/Inflectra. We aim to bring affordable yet effective monoclonal antibody therapies and unburden healthcare systems from associated high costs.

Posted date: January 14, 2017

Job start date: ASAP, within 1Q 2017